GOVERNOR BRUMBAUGH AND PARTY TO VISIT HERE ON OCTOBER 5

Charleroi Included in Itinerary on Second Day of Whirlwind Tour

TRIP PLOTTED THIS WEEK

State Highway Department Sends Representative Out to Blaze Way--100 Invited by Chief Executive to Accompany Him.

Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh and a party of friends will visit Charleroi and other points in Washington county on Tuesday, October 5. Gov. Brumbaugh is planning a trip over the state that will occupy one week's time, and this part of the Monongahela valley will be on the route of the second day's travel.

The state highway department is mapping out the itinerary for the governor and W. R. D. Hall, statistician of the department within the last few days passed through Charleroi, unknown to the citizens, plotting the course.

Leaving Harrisburg Monday morning, October 4, the first day's drive will be to Bedford, by way of Carlisle, Chambersburg and McConnellsburg, where the party will lunch. Tuesday's drive is by way of Ligonier to Greensburg for lunch; then leaving the pike, by Madison and West Newton to Belle Vernon, entering Washington county at Charleroi and thence to the county seat by way of Bentleyville and Beallsville and then to Pittsburg by way of Canonsburg. This will carry the party fifteen miles over the historic National pike.

The third day's course is back to Greensburg and then north by way of Alexandria, Armagh and Blairsville to Johnstown for lunch; then to Altoona for the night, by way of Ebensburg and Hollodaysburg. Thursday morning it is assumed that everything has gone well with the party, and that weather conditions have been favorable—the road to Hollidaysburg will be retraced and then over into Huntingdon county. The autos must climb to Huntingdon, where the governor will be host at a luncheon in the county seat of his native bailiwick. Then the machines will drop easily down the Juniata valley, will cross over Bear valley to Reedsville, and on by way of Milroy, Center Hall to State College and Bellefonte, where the night will be spent.

After leaving the Center county capital Friday morning the triumphal procession will move on to Lock Haven, then by Williamsport to Northumberland for lunch and thence by Danville, Bloomsburg and Wilkes Barre to Pocono Summit for the night. Next day, with the Wyoming valley as the route, the tour party will traverse Wayne and Pike counties to Millford on the Delaware. Then it will be easy going down to Stroudsburg and through the Delaware Water Gap and by way of Portland and Bangor to Easton. Still south and west the course will lie by way of Nazareth and Bethlehem to Allentown and on to the Quaker City, where the tour will end on Saturday night.

Governor Brumbaugh has sent out invitations to about 100 friends in the state to acompany him and about 25 of these have already acepted. These people of course will furnish their automobiles.

DON'T SOUND FIRE ALARM TWICE ADVISES CHIEF J. M. FLEMING

Useless Calling of Hill Firemen Detrimental—Second and Third Alarms Should be Left to Firemen.

Concerning the sounding of fire alarms Chief J. M. Fleming of the fire department makes the following suggestions:

"Persons having occasion to send in a fire alarm will please pull the alarm but once, unless they are absolutely sure the second alarm is necessary. The second alarm should be left to discretion of the fire company. The second and third alarms call out the hill fire companies and leave that section without protection and also causes firemen unnecessary loss of time and work.

"Wednesday evening the alarm was sounded several times and there was no need of but one alarm, as it took but about three minutes to extinguish the fire.

J.M.Fleming."

CARROLL'S DRUG STORE ENTERED AND RANSACKED DURING NIGHT

Lone Burglar Believed to Have Secured Only 75 Cents in Cash

ENTERED FROM REAR WINDOW

Slices the Screen With Knife—Chief Of Police Albright Starts Investigation—May Establish Connection With Country Robberies.

The drug store of John Carroll at 623 Fallowfield avenue was entered and ransacked by a burglar sometime during Wednesday night, but so far as could be ascertained this morning but 75 cents in cash was secured. The burglar, for it is believed, there was only one, made a pretty thorough search for money but failed to find more than $20 laid away in a box in a drawer in the back of the store.

Entry was made at the back of the store through a window. The screen was ripped with a knife and the night marauder climbed in. After getting into the store he thoroughly ransacked the prescription room at the back of the store, but failed to get much. He pulled out drawers in the desk and medicine cases, excepting the one which contained the money box. How he ever missed it cannot be surmised, since indications pointed to a search for money.

In the front part of the store the burglar must have taken his time. He procured two bottles of ginger ale at the soda fountain and drank both, leaving the bottles in the prescription room. He pulled open the candy case and stole some sweets and bothered about the bathing suits on display at a glass case long enough to thoroughly muss them up.

Just two persons were in the building at the time. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll being absent on a vacation visit in the central part of the state. Katherine Kopacz, the housekeeper and a friend Anna Yaros were preparing to retire at 12 o'clock, they state, when they heard a noise. They had previously seen a broad-shouldered man about five feet seven inches tall walking toward the store from the opposite side of the street, but had not taken much notice of him. They thought little of the noise and no discovery of the burglary was made until this morning at 7 o'clock when Miss Kopacz started cleaning up the store.

Chief of Police C. W. Albright secured some evidence that will help much in running down the burglar on a morning visit to the store. One thing found was that of a cake of soap wrapped in a piece of ordinary wrapping paper. This is the way the class known as "bums" carry soap.

It is possible that there will be some connection established between the local robbery and various robberies in the country district surrounding Charleroi. Some of the country robberies have not been of much consequence, but taken as a whole they furnish a good basis upon which the police may work.

EIGHT THOUSAND COUPONS ARE TURNED IN WEDNESDAY AT PARK

Newspaper Day Much Enjoyed at Eldora According to the Reported Use Of Free Slips.

BARELY PREVENT SERIOUS FIRES

One Conflagration at St. Jerome's Church Does $300 Damage Wednesday

OTHER AT CROWLEY BLOCK

Two serious conflagrations were narrowly averted Wednesday, one at St. Jerome's Roman Catholic church and the other at the new business block of M. T. Crowley on McKean avenue. At the church damage to the extent of about $300 was done in the sacristy used by the altar boys. The fire at the Crowley business block was caused by a workman dropping a lighted match on a tarred roof.

The fire at the church started in a cupboard. In the morning a funeral was held and charcoal used. It is supposed one of the altar boys in an effort to save some of the charcoal removed a piece from a censor and placed it with other charcoal in a box in the cupboard. Evidently a spark remained starting a smouldering fire. Boys noticed smoke issuing from a door, and Rev W. D. Fries, the pastor was notified. With the aid of a man who was working nearby he extinguished the blaze. The flames were confined entirely to the cupboard but valuable altar cloths and candles were destroyed. The altar cloths which were of fine material with hand-made lace borders were alone valued at about $200.

At the Crowley business block, it is said Arch Sims, a worker for the Johns-Manville company, of Pittsburg struck a match with which to light his pipe. The match is said to have fallen on the tarred paper. Immediately a blaze and dense smoke sprang up that caused much fright. Firemen responded promptly to the alarm, and extinguished the blaze in about three minutes time. The damage is said to be slight.

WE AND THE ENGLISH

The mass of Americans have come to a settled habit of mind, prohibitive of pro-German. These are emotions confined to a few and due to unusual conditions. Thus our sympathy in the war grows out of the perception that it is a war of ideas and that the American idea is wholly hostile to that which has been accepted by the Germans, maintains the New York Tribune. But at the point where the British adopt the German idea—even in reprisal—we shall protest—even if it affects property instead of life and rights rather than existence. This is the American point of view. It is not of any real import, then, whether the British regard it as right or wrong. What is of value now is that they should grasp it as a fact, even if they can not accept it as correct.

Many Englishmen have said and feel that America should lend every aid to England because she is fighting America's battle. This is the view of not a few Americans, but it is not the American point of view. The American point of view is that so far as the United States is able it should resist every attack upon international law and oppose to its uttermost extent all invasion of the rights of neutrals, whether by murder or arbitrary exercise of sea power. American foreign policy will be shaped by this opinion. It should not be misunderstood in England because such misunderstanding will simply play into the hands of those who are seeking to destroy American sympathy for the allied cause for German reasons.

INVESTIGATIONS.

Investigations of disaster are usually held in numbers according to the size of the disasters. The probing of a disaster that causes the death of a few persons, or the destruction of a small quantity of property is usually left to the coroner of the county in which they occur. But disasters like the Chicago river horror are followed by a half a dozen or more investigations says the McKeesport News Friction is the natural result. Where city, state and government officials are concerned, as they are in the Chicago river disaster, several investigations are necessary in a way, but we believe that all should not be conducted at the same time.

It seems that some of those investigating this awful calamity are more concerned in proving that men of certain departments were not responsible than they are in ascertaining just who were responsible. Get to the facts, gentlemen and punish the offenders, irrespective of whether they are government state or city employes. Such action is what is demanded by the people and they want it without unnecessary delay.

Council is spending money by the thousands for the improvement of streets and alleys of the town, and really accomplishing something of lasting good. What is necessary is a proper apportionment of available funds so that one section does not receive greater attention than another. There is the possibility of waste in the paving of a street or alley where really there is no actual need.

The styles in women's shoes are to be less bizarre and more expensive, we are told. In other words, for more money one will get less shoe, says the Washington News. This seems to be a universal tendency with the fashion plates, be they published by women's legislatures.

Flowers have been planted in the beds in the newly grassed plot of ground between Main street and Washington avenue. This is a worthy improvement of which much note will probably be taken by those who have had to look on the neglected spot for years.

Governor Brumbaugh wants to know just what kind of people make love, so he proposes to take a state trip to find out. For this he gains respect.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

It was a very small student who astonished his father, a practitioner of medicine, by propounding the following question:

"Papa, do you know what the great Napoleon's nickname was?"

Wishing that his son might have the pleasure of bestowing this information, his father evaded a reply by saying:

"What is it, son?"

His state of mind can be imagined when the litle fellow proudly responded:

"He was known as the Little Corpuscle."

"D'y want all the road?" shouted an irate motor-driver, tooting for all he was worth in a narrow country lane. "Pull aside, and let me pass by!"

"Whoa, steady now," grinned the farmer, from the top of a load of hay. "I dunno as I'm in any hurry."

"You are looking for trouble, my man!" spluttered the fellow in the car, as the motor throbbed and fumed impatiently. "Are you going to move or not?"

"I don't know as I be in any hurry t'morning."

"Seemed in hurry enough to let that carriage pass just now," smiled the angry one.

"Oh, ay! But that horse wuz eatin' my hay. There ain't no danger o' you eatin' it, I reckon—You don't look hungry!"—"Tid Bits."

Uses Bat to Best Burglar.

A baseball bat was used by John Kearney of West Philadelphia, to subdue a burglar who attacked him in the cellar of his home. After pummeling the intruder until he howled for mercy Kearney turned him over to the police.

Kearney awakened before daylight and smelled gas. After careful daylight examination of the rooms of the first floor, he made his way to the cellar.

At the bottom of the stairs a man jumped on Kearney's shoulders and a struggle followed. Jars of raspberry jam, tomatoes, pickles, and other preserves were smashed during the combat. At last one of Kearney's hands closed on a baseball bat as the two men rolled about the floor.

Wrenching himself loose, he swung the bat against the burglar's head and repeated the operation until the man cried "enough."

Better Kind of Dishpan.

At last a man has invented a better kind of dishpan, says the Philadelphia Ledger. How very long we have used either a high, round pan or a low oval one, neither of which was the shape or size of the sink. But we have now a vast improvement—namely, a square dishpan made of very heavy retinned ware. It is much more like the shape of the sink, and, in addition, has the peculiar feature of a little plug at the bottom with a piece of wire netting so that the plug need only be drawn out when the dishwater needs to be changed. In this way, the water is strained and food particles prevented from going down the sink.

Two Feet.

"I know what makes trouble," said Drake; "it's people who [illegible] always take the short cut at every turn."

He Knew.

The former big league baseball manager, who had been canned because the team finished last as usual, was taking a civil service examination in order to secure a political job. He was amazed at the list of fool questions on the examination paper. He didn't know the distance from the earth to the moon, so he passed that one up. And he could not describe a syzygy, so he called that test a loser. But the third question interested him. It said:

"Name the largest bone in the human frame."

And with a grin of confidence the former manager wrote this answer:

"The head."

Chicken.

Most every man loves chicken pie,
And maybe that's why veal's so high

Our Daily Special.

Anything you get for nothing is usually worth a little less.

Luke McLuke Says:

There isn't much romance about having a sunny disposition.

A man usually feels as good as his stomach.

Ever notice that a street car runs about thirty miles an hour when you are trying to catch it and runs about three miles an hour after you have caught it?

The old fashioned girl who was always afraid that she might show through now has a daughter who believes that a coat of talcum powder is opaque.

If it wasn't for the weather, half the people in the world wouldn't have a blame thing to talk about.

Another mystery is how a thin girl can eat six square meals per day and grow thinner, and how a fat girl can eat one potato and gain four pounds.

A woman can imagine that she is saving money because she has everything charged and doesn't ask her husband for some coin every morning.

If it ever came to a show down, most of us wouldn't have nerve enough to preach what we practice.

When a woman tells her husband that she has something she wants to talk to him about she usually means that she wants to talk to him about something she hasn't got.

The reason a bachelor is so particular about wearing socks that do not wrinkle around his ankles is because after he is married his big worry will be to get a pair or socks that have no holes in them.

When the germ of suspicion crawls in at the door the microbe of love flies out of the window.

There is a difference between a "gent" and a "gentleman." A "gent" is a man who gets his hair cut on Saturday night.

Every man knows that he could make himself famous if he wasn't so blamed busy working for a living.

If you are going to get married, why not get married on a Friday or on the 13th of the month? Then you will have something to blame it on.

Once in awhile you will run across a little, dried up 105 pound husband who wants a whole lot of credit because he doesn't act like a brute and beat up his husky 245 pound wife.

NEW METHODS IN WHALING

Old-Fashioned Harpoon Has Been Discarded for the Most Modern of Deadly Weapons.

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas pursued only right whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale; the small fish whale; and the humpback, were all too active, and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the modern whale gun is a finely fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell, and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue and kidneys the flesh and bones and the refuse, there remain the dried flesh and bones, which are now also put to commercial use. The absolutely fresh flesh is used to make whale-meat meal, a nutritious and wholesome foodstuff that is largely fed to cattle. From the remaining flesh and about a third of the bones whale guano is made, and from the bones alone bone-meal. The largest whaling business in the world is now conducted in the Falkland islands and their dependencies. The season begins in November, and lasts until the end of April, and the average production of oil is nearly half a million barrels; of guano, 8,375 tons. The industry gives employment to about 3,500 men.—Youth's Companion.

FIRST OF LIFE'S LESSONS

Finding and Filling One's Place Perhaps the Most Essential of All That We Learn.

To find our niche and fill it is, perhaps, the most essential of all life's lessons. It sums up in a word not only our duty to ourselves but to others as well and embraces much more than at first glance seems possible. It is a lesson that is assigned to us from the beginning, sometimes long before our immature minds can grasp its full meaning, but it is one that lies ready at hand for our assimilation the moment we show evidence of our ability to take it in. Of course there are many persons who shrink from undertaking life's responsibilities, who defer until the last the acceptance of certain duties which must evidently come to them and who, sometimes, enter upon these duties unprepared for their proper discharge. It is so easy to drift from day to day unhampered by the knowledge that there is work for us to do; so long as we know that there is someone else upon whom we can depend for our well-being, someone who shoulders all necessary responsibilities, someone who indulges our whims and fancies and protects us as far as possible from the necessity of assuming our natural debts, we are well content to let the days pass unmarked by any attempt on our part to discover for ourselves the part we must play in this world.

Famous Bridge Builder.

Gustav Lindenthal, who is building the Hell Gate bridge at New York, the greatest structure of the kind in the world, which will have a length of three and one-half miles, is an Austrian by birth. He received his technical education at Brunn and Vienna, and before coming to this country in 1874 he had had considerable practical experience in railroad building. His first work in the United States was as an assistant engineer on the force constructing the Centennial exhibition buildings. He became a citizen and took up railroad building. Some of the greatest bridges which he has built span the Alleghany and Monongahela rivers, though he has also spanned the Mississippi and other streams. Though famed as a bridge builder he prefers to be known as a man who has had more to do with laying out railroad routes.

How Labor Cost Comes In.

Labor plays a larger part in the conditions faced by the dress goods selling agents than perhaps they are aware. Some years back the mills had no difficulty in selling cotton worsteds in large quantities to the cutters-up. With increasing labor costs, however, the garment manufacturers find that it does not pay them to put what is high-priced workmanship into low-quality goods. The results obtained, no matter how production is speeded up, are not satisfactory. The demand has therefore shifted toward better fabrics that give a larger return in the manufactured state. This goes a long way toward explaining the shifting of values upward and why it is no longer possible to sell the amount of cheap goods that was disposed of in past years with little difficulty.

Queen Wilhemina's Beauty.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is sometimes referred to as the queen with the complexion in Europe, but few people know that she has a special recipe for keeping the skin in perfect condition. Some time ago she adopted the plan from the Dutch Indies of taking lemon baths. Five or six lemons are squeezed into the bath, and various scents then added, including eau de cologne, of which she is said to use a pint a day. The bath is highly invigorating.

PEOPLE TAKING TO WALKING

Most Healthful Form of Exercise Has Become a Popular Fad Among All Classes.

Walking has taken a hold on popular fancy as a sport, pastime, recreation and form of exercise. Walking has been urged upon the people by men and women interested in public health, by physical culture enthusiasts, by nature students and by the press. Every person converted to walking has become a missionary and unusually with all the spirit of a convert. The walking habit, which is being contracted by an increasing number of persons yearly, is a relatively new habit.

In those days usually referred to glowingly and somewhat indefinitely as the "good old times," walking was not practiced as a pleasure, but only as a necessity, and as a necessity it was avoided wherever possible. The average person did not move around much unless with the aid of a horse or a horse and trap. There was not much going to and fro on foot. Walking was apt to be considered as a sign of poverty or as evidence of dementia. On the other side of this question it may be said that in the olden time more men got their exercise in the open by their daily work than now.

Cities were small, and men were generally not called on to walk long distances. The cab or the omnibus came into operation on the city thoroughfare, then the horse car, the cable and the electric car. Now the automobile is here. The ratio of indoor to outdoor workers increased and the means and opportunities for moving from place to place without much physical exertion multiplied.

TEETH AND THE DIGESTION

Importance of Proper Mastication of Food Is Seldom Given Proper Consideration.

From the time food enters the mouth and is masticated until its waste has left the body the function of digestion goes forward through its various stages.

Mastication, accomplished in the mouth, is no doubt the most important stage of this function.

Defective teeth are a threat to health by reason of impairment of mastication, and consequently of digestion.

While the vigorous stomach may attack particles of food of considerable size and resistance, the process of digestion is naturally slowed up in proportion to the magnitude and firmness of the unground particles.

In addition to this, the admixture of healthy saliva to the food during the process of mastication is of no little consequence, especially in the digestion of starch.

Thus defective teeth not only injure by reason of imperfect mastication, but likewise by reason of a failure to properly incorporate the saliva with the finely divided particles of the food while it is still in the mouth.

It's an old saying, but a wise one, that "people dig their graves with their teeth." Take care of your teeth and save your health and lengthen your life.

Deep Snow in Scotland.

Snow fell last winter to a depth of over three feet in the upland districts of Athol and Strathtay, and on several sheep-grazing holdings it was impossible to gather the sheep herds. In one case a shepherd's dog successfully located a sheep which got enveloped in a large wreath. The dog scraped away the snow, disclosing the presence of the sheep, which was none the worse for its confinement. For some time hand feeding of hill herds and high-lying grazing stocks had to be resorted to. While hay is fairly plentiful this season the stock of roots available is somewhat small.

Birds, Cats and Dogs in War.

Bird and animal lovers have made an investigation of the effect upon both domestic and wild creatures of gunfire, especially heavy cannonading, says the Cologne correspondent of the Associated Press. They find that for two and sometimes three days the birds are terribly excited and fly back and forth in bewilderment, and that cats and dogs bide in the darkest places they can find. At the end of that time, however, their excitement subsides and they become absolutely impervious to the noise.

Draftless Huts.

A new type of hut for soldiers which, it is claimed, will allow of a saving of at least 25 per cent on present expenditure, was exhibited recently at the College of Ambulance, London.

The hut is pyramidical in shape and designed to secure a maximum of fresh air with an absence of drafts no matter what the direction of the wind.

Seventeen huts of this type, known as the Pritchard principle, will accommodate, its inventors claim, a battalion in greater comfort than they are now securing in 34 huts.

Complete Understanding.

"I understand that you are a great peace advocate, Mr. Dolan?"

"I am that," answered Mr. Rafferty.

"An' might I inquire what you're going to do to preserve peace?"

"I don't have to do anything. Man an' boy I've met about everybody that thinks he's a fighter in this neighborhood. There's none of 'em that won't admit I'm the best man, so what's there to quarrel about?"

MAY MEAN END OF ALL WAR

Development of Destructive Airship Sure to Have Powerful Effect on Humanity.

The difficulty of properly arming and propelling aircraft lies in the fact that we cannot yet obtain sufficiently powerful engines — even though, in the course of a few years, the engines gave increased in horse power from about fifty to two hundred says Claude Grahame-White in the Youth's Companion. But when we look ahead, and estimate what may be possible with a power plant, not of hundreds of horse power, but of thousands, then we can imagine a perfected war machine, of the future—a huge armored craft, that carries a crew of hundreds of men, and that is equipped with formidable guns and aerial torpedo and bomb-dropping tubes. Such a vessel will be able to reef its wing surface when traveling at high speed, and will rush through the air as a speed of several hundred miles an hour.

But even against such metal-built monsters of the air, flying at their amazing speeds, man will pit his ingenuity. It is clear that he cannot fight them from the earth; he must fight them high in their own element. So in the future, if wars continue, we may have fearful struggles of the air—not small and isolated combats, such as this campaign has shown us, but battles desperately waged, with death and destruction raining from the clouds. There are those, however, who argue that such a form of war, when pushed to its ruthless limit, will prove so ghastly that humanity will revolt, and that the science that revolutionizes war will also end it.

CHANGES WROUGHT BY WAR

"Tommy Atkins" of Today Is a Different Being From His Prototype of a Few Years Ago.

The old pouter-pigeon type of British soldier, with his ramrod deportment and feet at impossible angles, is now as obsolete as his red coat. This change is evident, not only in the training of the new army, but in the royal cadet schools at Sandhurst and Woolwich. Alertness and agility, mental and physical, are now aimed for instead of physical rigidity and mechanical precision as in the old times.

Swedish exercises have taken the place of conventional calisthenics. About the only piece of apparatus left in the Sandhurst gymnasium is the padded horse. Parallel bars, rings, heavy dumb-bells and pulley exercises have been sent away. Now the cadets are taught what is known in their slang as monkey tricks, such as walking on top of high and narrow stone walls and jumping safely to the ground, skipping the rope and playing various kinds of games.

One reason why the pouter chest has gone out of style is its menace to health. An overdeveloped chest is held to be dangerous, as it invites pneumonia and other troubles. Men on the march are allowed to unbutton their coats and make themselves comfortable, but smoking at such times is discouraged by the medical authorities. The deportment of the soldier on parade has also been made normal and natural.

Sanity and Insanity.

Dr. Stephen Smith, now ninety-two years old, has been one of the foremost public spirited physicians of New York. He has a theory of the insane, set forth in an interview the other day, which merits attention. Cornell, when governor of New York, made Doctor Smith commissioner in lunacy, telling him that many people believed persons were kept in asylums by their enemies when they were not really insane, and charging Doctor Smith to find out what there was to it. The painstaking physician accordingly talked privately with 15,000 lunatics, coming to the conclusion then, and holding it ever since, that 90 per cent of them might as well be out of asylums and sanatoriums as in them, if somebody would only take suitable care of them. He cured many merely by interesting them in congenial work. He also noticed that when he left the asylums and began to converse with people outside they told him stories very much akin to those that he had just heard from the presumed lunatics.—Boston Herald.

Florence Nightingale's Statue.

"The Lady With the Lamp," statue of Florence Nightingale, has been unveiled without ceremonial, in Waterloo place, London. The statue stands high on a red and gray granite pedestal, and makes a notable and an appropriate addition to Waterloo place. By its side, fully harmonizing with it in general outline, is that of Sidney Herbert. The effective background for both is the Crimean memorial. The sculptor portrayed his subject in a sympathetic pose, standing in the voluminous skirt of the early Victorian period, with the lamp borne in the right hand. This statue of "The Lady With the Lamp" is the first public statue of a woman in London other than those of royal ladies.

Of Prehistoric Age.

Two petrified skeletons—one of a man of giant stature and one other of a woman, much smaller—were found in a cavern blasted out of solid blue rock in a Hulton (Pa.) hillside by quarrymen. Geologists who have examined the skeletons say they evidently belong to a prehistoric age.

In an opinion handed down by Judge R. W. Irwin the petition, in the case of William Gelder against George Szeely and Elizabeth Szeeley to have the judgment against Elizabeth Szeeley stricken off is refused. In this case a judgment was obtained against the defendants in favor of the plaintiff before Justice Harry W. Scott. of North Charleroi, July 5, 1911. A transcript was filed and property of the defendant was levied upon. The defendant filed a petition to have the judgment stricken from the record December 29, 1913. In passing on this case the court states that everything is according to law and the usual forms and that the record made by the justice is not faultly defective as claimed.

RULING GIVEN BY THE COURT IN LOCAL CASE

In an opinion handed down by Judge R. W. Irwin the petition, in the case of William Gelder against George Szeely and Elizabeth Szeeley to have the judgment against Elizabeth Szeeley stricken off is refused. In this case a judgment was obtained against the defendants in favor of the plaintiff before Justice Harry W. Scott, of North Charleroi, July 5, 1911. A transcript was filed and property of the defendant was levied upon. The defendant filed a petition to have the judgment stricken from the record December 29, 1913. In passing on this case the court states that everything is according to law and the usual forms and that the record made by the justice is not faultly defective as claimed.
